Special “Aviation” Series

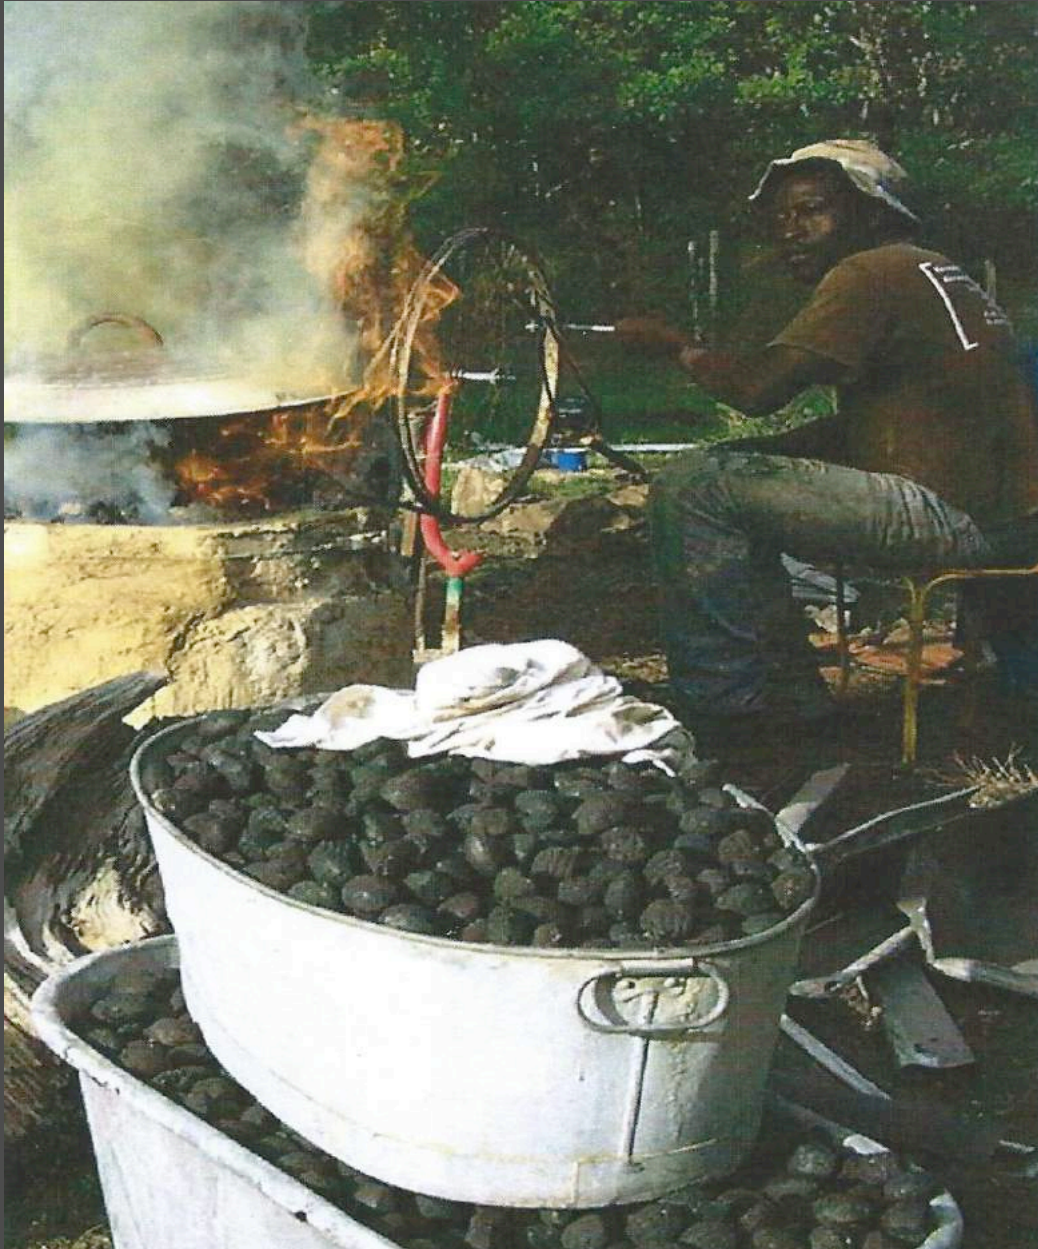

Treat yourself to a sculpture of one of the greatest bronze craftsmen of Africa

Authentic and caving in to no concession, Sidiki Dermé makes of his African roots his richness and his sources of inspiration.

His personal history reads like a tale...

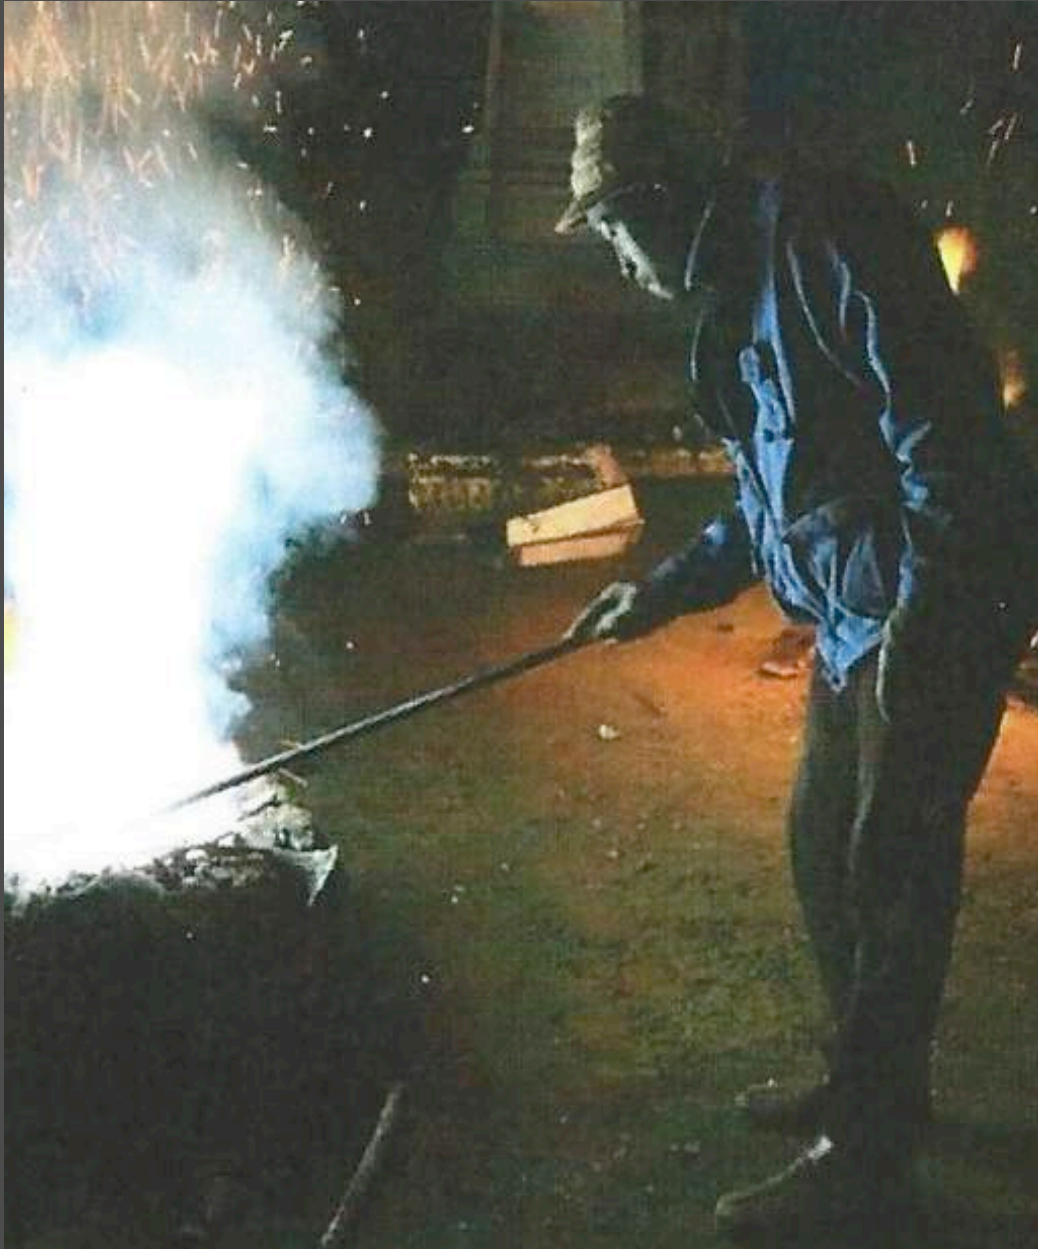

Sidiki Dermé, sculptor artist, master founder and bronze smelter, has been living for fifteen years now between France and Burkina Faso.

Heir of the bronze-smelters tradition of Ouagadougou and coming from a family at the origin of the work of bronze in Mossis country, he grew up in the family court in the district of Nioxin amid horses and sheep.

All naturally, Sidiki has been initiated since his childhood to the traditional art of bronze casting with lost-wax technique. He gradually acquired all the intricacies of art work, from modelling to moulding, from oven baking to the casting of bronze, a cast copper-tin alloy.

Over time he became a versatile artist relentlessly pushing the frontiers of his art. He evolves in a unique and dreamlike world of his own shaped by his African and international roots.

Sidiki Dermé is recognized as one of the greatest African artists of his time.

In Western Africa several of his works have been acclaimed by critics :

« The cry for Liberty of the woman of Africa » (award-winning piece of work at the national week of culture in Bobo Dioulasso);

« The bust of Siguiri Bakaba », film-maker from ivory coast, director of the Palace of culture Bernard Dadié in Abidjan;

A collection of about sixty statuettes of the history of Yenenga at the museum of Bendrologie in Menaga.

A stage ornament for famous singer Tiken Jah Fakoly of ivory coast.

His sculptures revealing feminine and masculine plastics, maternity, esotericism and eroticism, equestrian arts and aerial movement won him recognition and wide praise in France.
